

ABSTRACT

A method is described for producing image data to be used by a laser thermal transfer apparatus having a multiple channel printhead of laser beams for transferring different organic material with dopants from a donor onto an OLED substrate to form different color emissive sites on the substrate.